

SIMON & GARFUNKEL POSTPONE U.S. AND CANADA TOUR

Rescheduling of dates TBA

Green Bay (June 18, 2010) - The Simon & Garfunkel tour that had been set for July has now been postponed indefinitely. This includes the July 15 concert scheduled for the Resch Center. The tour, originally set for April and then rescheduled for July, is now on hold as Art Garfunkel continues to recover from a vocal paresis. According to his doctors, Art is expected to make a full recovery, however they cannot predict an exact timeline. This condition (paresis) inhibits the duo from performing shows at the highest possible level and it is for that reason and out of respect for their fans that Paul and Art have decided to put the tour on hold.

Simon & Garfunkel regret any inconvenience this has caused their fans and are looking forward to rescheduling the dates when Art fully recovers. Art says, "I do feel bad about disrupting so many people's plans but, as I continue to mend, I can't yet bring my 'A Game' to a tour, and I would not perform for you with anything less."
